

In this part, I would like to share some incredible experience I can never forget about with you.

This is the most stunning place I have never thought about, especially Porto. It is surrounded by the mountain and the sea. You can feel the clear air passing your face while walking down to the beach. The building there is very traditional but elegant in a special way. I think it is a bit like a Taiwanese aboriginal style. Staying in everywhere in Portugal is just enjoyable. Everybody is very easy-going, funny, and enthusiastic. Most important of all, their English is very great. Although it is breathtaking, you usually have to walk all the time in the city center since the Portuguese didn't build many transportations to the mountain. In conclusion, this is the place you can't miss when you are in Europe.

Turkish Friends

I'm talking about almost my roommates because they are so lovely and caring. Turkish loves to share food with others. For example, I sat next to my Turkish roommates who were eating at that moment. He asked me if I want to try his chicken dishes with some tomatoes. Then, I did. It was amazing! However, bad things can happen, either. Since they tend to share food, they can spread the virus or fluid quickly. Therefore, you may have a chance to see a bunch of people getting sick at the same time so do be careful.

Polish food is very special and cheap. Although I didn't try everything, I would recommend something for you to order. First, the chocolate pancake is totally my favorite food. You can buy it almost everywhere. In fact, Polish is famous for dessert. Second, Doner is actually is made from Turkish but it is now common dishes in lots of stores. It is probably the best food in Europe. On the other hand, there is a small warning. Polish also offers dumplings but they taste nothing like Chinese dumplings since it is sweet. For me, I don't like them at all.
