文化與人 the culture and the people

Canada is a North America country. Culturally speaking, you could easily find out lots of differences in terms of education, art of communication, food, transport, ideology and so many things. Initially, I have no idea that Canadian are very indifferent which means they won't talk to you unless you talk to them or ask for help. I felt huge regret that I spent too much time struggling with my language problem and I did not make lots of friends only a few. If I can come back to Canada, I will do the initiates and talk to the person sitting next to me and be proactive. They just don't know how to start with the friendship.

Every student all study very hard and it is very difficult to make friend in class.

The other way to make friend is joining different student clubs and talk to people especially in the party which means everyone is open for having a conversation to know someone they don't know and look for new friendship.

Do not care people ask your nationality or have an issue on your accent, language skill because this is impolite for sure. Just be confident and talk to them as much as possible or leave the situation because some people are not worth it.
