Chinese University of Hong Kong Annual CSR conference 2013.

I was lucky to be part of this annual Corporate Social Responsibility Conference held in Hong Kong Exhibition and Convention Centre on June 6th 2013.

Chinese University of Hong Kong is organizing this one of the biggest networking events in Hong Kong from past 7 years and a team is elected every year which is responsible for shaping this grand event.

I was impressed with the scale and professionalism of this conference and it was nowhere less than a world class event in many ways. This was entirely organized by CUHK students with support from the University. They had speakers from fortune 500 companies like Swire and Hong Kong MTR.

I volunteered to help in the conference in return of complementary registration. I was assigned the guest registration desk by my team leader and was the first point of contact for anyone who is joining the conference.

I met lots of interesting people from the corporate world and managed to exchange contacts and ideas.

I even raised couple of questions during the conference at the question and answer round and was appreciated for good questions.

In all this conference was a very good learning platform for me and I learnt few things which will help me to organize events like this in future with better management.
